WILLIAM FEATHER, editor of Imperial Type Metal magazine, reiterates a warning often expressed in this column, that youths who set their minds on "white-collar" jobs to the exclusion of any useful trade are binding themselves to a future of gentile poverty.

Our country, founded on the gospel of the "dignity of every useful labor," is apparently becoming afraid of dirty hands. But dirty hands built America—and more money collectively is paid dirty hands than is paid white hands.

An education of the higher sort is worth only what it brings a man in self-satisfaction. But a trade ties him in to the work-a-day world, and the work-a-day world's payroll—and if he happens to have a fine education on top of that, so much the better.

Here's William Feather's editorial on youth and trade—

Hope Is Urged to Support Airmail Service May 19

Rev. Thos. Brewster Outlines National Airmail Week Program

PICKUP ON MAY 19

Airmail Plane Will Stop at Local Airport for This One Day

By REV. THOMAS BREWSTER

The United States, the youngest and most progressive of the great family of English speaking nations has pioneered successfully in many great fields of thought and action, not the least of which is that of air mail service.

On May 15, 1918, the United States Postoffice Department inaugurated the first air mail route between Washington, D. C. and New York City, a distance of 213 miles with an intermediate stop at Philadelphia, Pa. From this humble beginning our air mail service has grown to vast proportions, for today in the United States there are over 32,000 miles of air mail routes, and the annual mileage totals the staggering sum of 64,000,000 flown miles. In addition there are 29,770 route miles in the system connecting the United States with such foreign points as Canada, Bermuda, Cuba, Mexico, most of the central and south republics, Macau and Hong Kong in Eastern Asia, also Trans-Pacific service between the U. S. mainland and such points as Hawaii, Guam and the Philippines, with additional extensions being planned to link the United States in air mail service with such distant countries as Australia, New Zealand, Great Britain and many others.

A Romantic Story

In the romantic story of aerial postal development are found such illustrious names as Lincoln Beachey, Earl Ovington, Catherine and Eddie Stinson, Slim Lambert, Robert Love, Bert De Vere, Richard E. Byrd, Clarence Chamberlain and more recently Dick Merrill of trans-Atlantic fame together with many others far too numerous to mention.

As the nation approaches the 20th anniversary of regular official air mail service, nation wide emphasis is being placed upon it and thousands of groups in cities and towns large and small throughout the land are cooperating with the Postoffice Department in an endeavor to make it the greatest aerial postal celebration ever observed in the world's history. The citizens of Hope led by an enthusiastic committee are invited and urged to give its hearty support to all plans being formulated for the local observance of National Air Mail Week in Hope May 15-21.

On May 19, an mail bearing six cent postage which is the present air mail rate per piece will be picked up at local airport and flown to Little Rock for distribution from that point over regularly established air mail routes. This will be the first time our city has enjoyed this privilege and distinction, and it will be by general permission of the Postoffice Department that this service is given on that day. An appropriate rubber stamp marking of local significance, furnished by Hope Chamber of Commerce, will be applied in green ink to all air mail pieces out of Hope on May 19 and all air mail receiving such an impression together with the local postoffice date stamp of May 19th will constitute valuable souvenirs and will possess historic interest and may in time come to have even material value.

New Airmail Stamp

The Hope Postoffice expects to have in stock in time for use on all outgoing air mail on May 19 the new bi-colored six cent air mail stamp which is scheduled for release on May 14, at Dayton, Ohio, scene of the early labors of the Wright brothers and in St. Petersburg, Fla., where on this date the American Air Mail Society opens its annual four day convention. Upon the volume of air mail received by the Hope Postmaster for dispatch on May 19 will depend the amount of consideration we as a city receive when in this perhaps not too distant future, arrangements are made for air mail service for the towns and cities of our great state of Arkansas.

Here is a challenge and an opportunity we cannot afford to neglect.

Fascist Revolt in Brazil Put Down; Many Are Killed

Outlawed Integralist Faction Rises in Heart of Rio de Janeiro

VARGAS USES GUN

Republic's Authoritarian President Personally Leads Guards

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil.—(AP)—President Getulio Vargas, pistol in hand, personally led defenders of the Guanabara presidential palace Wednesday as government forces smothered a Fascist revolt against his authoritarian regime.

An undetermined number of rebels were killed or wounded and hundreds were arrested.

The uprising, inspired by the outlawed Integralist faction, flared and died in the heart of the capital.

Here now we have the situation everywhere in this country of great numbers of unemployed youths, and severe shortages of skilled labor.

Five Teachers Are Re-elected—Three New Members Added

At a recent meeting the Guernsey Board of Trustees for the 1938-39 term of school were elected:

Three new members were elected to the eight-teacher faculty of Guernsey for next year as follows:

Mrs. Edgar Tyler of Bright Star will replace Mrs. Clarence Tyler as teacher of the first grade; Miss Ruth Atkins will succeed Mrs. George Griffin as teacher of the second grade; Miss Muriel Francis of Prescott will succeed Mrs. Charles Wylie as home room teacher of the seventh and eighth grades.

The following five teachers were re-elected: Miss Nellie Hays, third and fourth grades; Miss Edna Gordon, fifth and sixth grades; Miss Lillie Belle Tucker, high school history and social science; Mr. Forney Holt, high school math; and general sciences; Hugh Brewster, principal and high school English.

Baseball Player Held for Murder

Formal Charge Is Placed Against Jack Foster of Benton

CAMDEN, Ark.—(AP)—Jack Foster, 32, Benton baseball player, was charged with first degree murder Tuesday in the death Monday night of Curtis Carson, 26, his teammate. Officers accused Foster of hitting Carson over the head with a baseball bat when Carson threw cold water on him as they were taking a shower following a ball game here April 24.

State's Magnetic Nail Picker Cruising Roads of Hope Area

A. C. Collins, Operator, Reports Recovery of 400 Pounds of Nails for Each 30 Miles of Gravel Highway

The Arkansas Highway Department's magnet truck, designed to save the motoring public many punctures, is operating in District Three.

The truck, equipped with powerful magnets, will pick up a metal object weighing as much as 200 pounds, according to A. C. Collins of Little Rock, operator of the machine.

Mr. Collins said he found the gravel roads in District Three to have a greater volume of nails, screws, spikes and other metal objects, than in some of the other highway districts. This possibly is due to greater traffic on the roads in this section.

Mr. Collins said he was averaging about 400 pounds of metal per 30 miles of highway in this district. He starts from a given point, travels 30 miles on the right hand side of the road, then reverses his direction and comes back on the other side of the road.

He actually travels a distance of 60 miles—but covers only 30 miles of highway. This 30-mile stretch has been yielding 400 pounds of metal.

Mr. Collins has been working out of Hope the past week. He has com-

NLRB Is Rebuffed by Federal Court

Evidence Described as "Statements Mixed With Opinion"

COVINGTON, Ky.—(AP)—The Sixth United States Circuit Court of Appeals denied the National Labor Relations Board Tuesday an enforcement order against the Thompson Products Company of Cleveland, Ohio, and declared the board's finding in the case tended to "promote discord among employer and employee."

Judge Elwood Hamilton of Louisville, Ky., wrote that the finding was "not sustained by substantial evidence" and that the firm "would have been justified" in discharging three men, "had these been no effort to organize employees in a union."

Judge C. C. Simons concurred although Judge Florence E. Allen observed that two of the workers were discharged "because of union membership and activities."

The board last August directed the company to reinstate three employees and cease purported opposition to the United Automobile Workers of America, a C. I. O. affiliate.

The board's brief had "mingled statements of witnesses and expressions of opinion," Judge Hamilton wrote, adding:

"There should be a clean-cut statement of the ultimate facts without the reasoning by which the board arrived at its finding."

Pine Sawmill Then, Pulp Plant Now

BOGALUSA, La.—(AP)—The Great Southern Lumber company's sawmill, once rated greatest in the world, has cut its last log; but Bogalusa has no fear of becoming a ghost town.

The vast supply of virgin pine from which the mill averaged more than 700,000 feet of lumber a day for years is all gone now but where it stood are 300,000 acres of planted pines.

These pines not suitable for lumber, are ideal for pulp and paper making.

Hitler's Fury Over Fake Photo Matched by Lad the Picture Really Belonged to

'Dog Face' Picture of Baby Not That of Nazi Dictator

PRESS IS HOAXED

By NEA Service
CLEVELAND—Freckled faced Johnny Warren is getting pretty tired of the kids razzing him about Adolf Hitler.

He wishes his schoolmates would just forget about the picture which sent Der Fuehrer into a spitting rage five years ago, and which still remains the center of an international mystery.

Here's how it all happened: In 1933 a photograph purporting to be that of Hitler at a very early age was widely published in the United States. The baby in the picture wasn't a pretty baby. In fact, he looked like a most terrifying brute—obviously a very tough customer at a very early age.

Here Hitler was made very unhappy by the picture, because it really wasn't Baby Adolf at all. The German government obtained a true picture of Hitler as a baby and sent it over here to be published. The newspapers all said they were sorry, but they didn't know how it happened or the identity of the baby whose picture they had published.

Now it has been discovered who the baby was—none other than John May Warren, now a husky 8-year-old who lives in Lakewood, a suburb of Cleveland. It was a picture of Johnny at 2 years of age which had been published as that of Baby Hitler. But the picture wasn't the real Johnny.

Someone, identity unknown, had obtained a copy of a picture of baby Johnny with his pudgy face all screwed up as he squinted into the sun. Then, that same somebody had retouched the snapshot so that Johnny's babyish squint was turned into a diabolical glower.

Somehow—and that's the mystery—the picture got into Austria. Next, the photo was printed by a Dutch paper, which obtained it from an Austrian source which it believed absolutely reliable. The London Daily Herald obtained the picture from the Dutch paper and printed it, after which the photo came to the United States through regular newspaper channels as an authentic picture of Hitler as an infant.

How did the picture get to Austria? Who was the culprit? Someone knows the answers, but he's not telling.

Johnny's mother, now Mrs. Carl Downs, found out about her son's part in the mixup just the other day when she saw the "Hitler version" of her baby's picture reprinted in a magazine. She can't explain it. All she knows is that the picture was taken when the family lived in Westport, Conn., and in the same manner that millions of other proud parents have pictures taken of their young hopefuls.

In any event, Johnny is a right handsome boy now, and certainly doesn't bear any resemblance to the Nazi Fuehrer. And if people will just forget about the Hitler business, Johnny will be happy.

Saenger Gold Cup for Softball Title

Trophy Will Bear Winning Team's Name, Have Possession Year

A permanent Saenger gold cup for each season's championship team in the local softball leagues was announced Wednesday by M. A. Lightman, Jr., manager of the Saenger and Rialto theaters.

The winning team each year will have its name and winning date engraved on the cup, which will then remain in the team's possession until another year's champion has been declared, Mr. Lightman announced.

The winning team each year will be given a free party at the Saenger and introduced on the stage, when the gold cup will be officially presented. If any team wins the award twice, the trophy will pass into its possession permanently, Mr. Lightman said.

Three in Race for Governor; Phipps Fails to Qualify

Bailey, Cook and McNutt Will Seek Governor's Office

4 FOR U. S. SENATOR

Huie, Brown and Lookadoo Seek Prosecutor's Post This District

LITTLE ROCK.—(AP)—The ticket for the August 9 Democratic primary closed at noon Wednesday with fields for major state offices limited to no more than four candidates.

Governor Carl E. Bailey will be opposed for re-election by R. A. Cook of Little Rock, and Dr. Walter Scott McNutt of Batesville.

Former Education Commissioner W. E. Phipps, who had announced his intention of running for governor, failed to qualify.

The following candidates for state offices had paid their entrance fees and filed Democratic party pledges:

United States Senate—Hattie W. Caraway of Jonesboro (incumbent), J. Rosser Venable of Little Rock, John L. McClellan of Malvern and Ector R. Johnson of Little Rock.

Governor—Carl E. Bailey of Little Rock (incumbent), R. A. Cook of Little Rock, Walter Scott McNutt of Batesville.

Lieutenant Governor—Bob Bailey of Russellville (incumbent), Richard R. Thompson of Eureka Springs, J. Steele Hall of Clinton.

Attorney General—Jack Holt of Harrison (incumbent).

Secretary of State—C. G. Hall of Little Rock (incumbent), O. L. Fisher of Searcy, Bob Frasier of Wigg Ridge, George W. Neal of Murfreesboro.

State Treasurer—Earl Page of Little Rock (incumbent).

State Auditor—J. Oscar Humphrey of Little Rock (incumbent).

State Land Commissioner—Otis Page of Little Rock (incumbent), Earl Page, no address given, and Lester Booker of Little Rock.

Associate Justice of Supreme Court—(McHaney's place)—E. L. McHaney of Little Rock (incumbent), Clyde E. Pettit of Stuttgart.

Associate Justice of Supreme Court—(Donham's place)—W. R. Donham of Little Rock (incumbent), J. S. Holt of Fort Smith.

State Senator—(Ninth district)—James H. Pilkinton, W. F. Reagan, Hugh Clark.

Congress—(Seventh district)—Wade H. Kirkens of Magnolia.

Circuit Judge—(Eighth district)—Dexter Bush.

Prosecuting Attorney (Eighth district)—Dick Huie, Lyle Brown, G. W. Lookado.

Bailey Files

LITTLE ROCK.—Governor Bailey announced Tuesday night that he will seek renomination for a second term in the August 9 Democratic primary election.

The announcement, made at Piggott, Clay county, climaxed a day in which corrupt practices pledges and party loyalty pledges were filed by a dozen candidates, including:

Ector R. Johnson, Little Rock lawyer, who filed as a candidate for nomination to the United States Senate seat now held by Mrs. Hattie W. Caraway.

State Senator Richard R. ("Dick") Thompson of Eureka Springs who announced he would seek nomination for lieutenant governor.

Mr. Thompson's decision to oppose Lieut.-Gov. Bob Bailey of Russellville, who has announced he will seek nomination for a second term, left only Attorney General Jack Holt, Auditor J. Oscar Humphrey and Treasurer Earl Page without opposition to date.

Reports current said that opponents of Mr. Page and Mr. Humphrey probably would file party loyalty pledges and pay their fees to Secretary Beloit Taylor of the State Democratic Committee before the deadline at noon Wednesday.

Secretary Taylor said the committee would maintain an office in the lobby of the Hotel Marion until noon.

Different, Says Governor

Governor Bailey said his campaign for renomination "will be conducted quite differently from others in which I have engaged."

Addressing several hundred persons in the Clay county courthouse yard, Gov. Bailey said:

"I am a candidate for a second term as governor of Arkansas. My entire

Pa's Private Title of Nobility

THE last few years have been pretty tough ones on Father. The world has gone drifting off to nowhere like a Kansas corn-crib before a cyclone, and Father knows no more what it is all about than any other citizen. The job of supporting a family—in a world where jobs keep getting scarcer—is growing tougher and tougher; and to occupy his traditional position as the symbol of wisdom and the source of earthly security is getting to be an impossibly difficult task.

Nevertheless, Father still rates pretty well. Optimist International, a service club organization, recently polled some 5000 American boys, asking them (among other things) to list "the greatest person now living."

The majority vote in this strange election was won by President Roosevelt; which, considering youth's natural bedazzlement by the White House, is only natural. Second place went to "Mother"—which, once again, is quite to be expected. But third place, high above people like Lindbergh, Joe DiMaggio and Buck Jones, went to Father.

Which ought to be heartening news for all the battle-weary dads of the land.

NO one has ever taken the plain, ordinary, humble citizen of this country aside and put him under the microscope to find out just exactly what it is that he is fighting for. If the job is ever done, the investigators will undoubtedly discover that the most compelling motive he owns is the desire to look like a somebody in the eyes of his son.

That isn't the easiest thing to do, because the ordinary man has a pretty clear conception of his own unworthiness. Even if he happens to be a boss man, sitting behind a big desk and rejoicing in a faculty title and a fat pay-check, he is all too conscious of the fact that he is only a cog in the business wheel after all, and that he could be replaced without too much trouble. And if he is one of the hired hands, as he usually is, hardly a day passes without reminding him of his insignificance.

But at home it is a little different. There someone actually looks up to him, relies on his wisdom and his knowledge of life, trusts that he can do the impossible, and creates a private title of nobility for him.

Which makes all the difference in the world.

LIFE isn't easy, for most people.

Unless a man can draw strength from some outside source he is apt to fail. And that source of strength, in most cases, is nothing else than the love and the trust in the heart of a youngster at home.

Men, Watch Yourself

INTRODUCTION of brighter and brighter colors and fancier and fancier designs in the field of men's wear was given the attention of no less a person the other day than Anthony J. Drexel Biddle, Jr., the present ambassador to Poland.

Color in men's clothing is not merely on the way! It is here. The men are taking to it like ducks to water, and the trend is going gayer and gayer. The prospect of an unprecedented concern with sartorial finery among males imposes a certain obligation now.

Men! Resolve now for the future that you will not:

Feel constrained to throw away a hat after wearing it three times; but a tie that doesn't go with any of your shirts, and then buy a shirt for the new tie, and then have to buy a suit for the new shirt; try to make your new suit over into something better; consign your best clothes to life in a bureau drawer—or kill yourself molding your figure to a new style.

Some Facts About Blood Transfusion

One of the most dramatic of the performances in modern scientific medicine for the benefit of those who need aid is the blood transfusion.

So greatly is the value of this method now recognized that rules and regulations are being developed in hospitals and in various communities to insure that plenty of good blood will be available for those who require it whenever it is needed.

There are certain facts about blood transfusion which most people do not know. For instance, the blood of a person who is the donor must be compatible with that of the person who receives the blood, or the reactions which result may be more serious than the disease for which the blood transfusion is given.

There are several different transfusion techniques that are used, all of which are useful. Many of them involve the use of multiple syringes by which the blood is drawn from the donor and then injected into the recipient. There are also machines which will be properly connected to the donor and to the recipient so that the blood goes almost directly from one into the other.

Agencies have been set up in different parts of the country to supply donors. Out of 350 hospitals, 137 have their own lists of people always available for blood transfusion.

In some parts of the country there are blood donor bureaus which list people available. In other communities, members of the American Legion, the police and the fire departments cooperate in this work, and whenever a donor is required in a great hurry nowadays, it is not unusual to broadcast on the radio the need of the sick person. The response is usually beyond the requirement.

Most large hospitals now have funds available for supplying blood without cost to people who are unable to pay for a blood transfusion.

The cost of blood varies. In most instances it is around $5 for a hundred cubic centimeters, which would be about $50 a quart.

In most cases the donation of blood in the quantities required is not harmful to the person who gives it.

Very rarely a disease may be transmitted by blood transfusion.

Such a rare and unfortunate accident should not, however, be permitted to prejudice anyone against the need for a blood transfusion when that need is apparent.

In practically every competent hospital today blood transfusion is carried out as a safe and satisfactory life-saving procedure.

Yacob the Hippo Grows Old at Zoo

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (AP)—Yacob hippopotamus at the Washington park zoo, is three years over the average life span of 25 years.

In the zoo a quarter century, he was imported from Germany after public subscription paid his $2,200 cost. Nameless and homesick, he sulked at the bottom of his tank. Carl Hagenbeck, noted German animal trainer of the day, visited him.

"Yacob, konni raus," Hagenbeck commanded, and the hippo emerged, snorting. He has been "Yacob" ever since.

Adaptable Child Is Never Square Peg in Round Hole.

(No. 57)
Another ingredient of real character is adaptability.

This takes a little thinking, for the person who is too "adaptable" to surroundings may lack ambition. He may lose his fight and the spirit of bettering his condition.

Yet, on the other hand, being able to conform to the varying tides of life is the secret of peace and contentment.

The man or woman who is set on a fixed standard and then finds it gone, is the most unhappy individual in the world.

I believe that there should be a certain elasticity in character that allows for both adaptability and ambition. The two should complement each other.

Little children do better, feeling that their lives are safe and fixed, and, of course, growing children also. We have discussed, before, the need for security-consciousness in the child. It is certainly too important to overlook.

But in his daily life, there may arise events that can be used to train him in adaptability. Then he won't adopt either a credo of fatalism that whispers "give up" or learn to pity himself to the point of futility.

Our children should be able to adapt themselves to change of environment and friends. To move too often may threaten their loyalty a little, for it is good to send down roots and become a part of a neighborhood, a city, a state, and so on, but it does teach them to accept new places and new people more easily.

(Right in the home, the child may accustom him or herself to changing rooms when necessary, or to giving up some intimate comfort cheerfully.)

But adaptability does not concern itself always with environment or material matters. A child should learn to adjust himself to ideas also, provided they fit in with his sense of rightness. Even morally, he may find his scene shifting, not always for the worse, as we conclude too sharply, but often for the better and bigger view.

As for holding an open mind toward knowledge, this is a real asset and money in the bank. It begins with Charles permitting James to explain that his James' way of constructing a model plane is as good as his own, or better. Charles should not think he knows everything, but should, instead, be willing to listen to his friend patiently and interestedly, and concede supremacy in method, or at least parity. To drop a fixed idea and open one's arms to a newer and better one, is the highest type of adaptability.

We do not wish to make character so fluid that it takes on the mold of any new suggestion it is poured into, for that would not be character, it would be the "yes" person without spine. But we do want character to be resilient enough to adjust ideas to new surroundings, new people, new thought, and new ways of achieving well-rounded mentality and emotional content.

What People Say—Some Small Town Lives

What people say and what people do make history, whether it be world capitals or country towns. The opinions outlined around cracker barrels are often reflected in the halls of Congress.

Remarkable not only as an entertaining novel, but as a saga of a country town through the prosperity of the 'twenties and the depression of the 'thirties, is W. L. White's "What People Said" (Viking Press; $2.75). His characters are real, midwestern folks, facing their domestic and economic problems; his locale is carefully delineated.

The story is of the rise and fall of the Norsses, father and son, newcomers to the mythical city of Athens, Oklahoma; and of the Charles Aldington Carruths—the elder, Athena's most noted citizen; the younger, assistant manager of his father's newspaper, and raconteur through which all the news and gossip of the town is sifted.

This initial literary effort of the son of William Allen White, saga of Emporia, Kan. (the publishers studiously avoided any such identification), gives him a place with some of the best of the exponents of sturdy, vital, American realism.

Kansas readers, incidentally, can not miss the striking similarity of the Norsses tragedy with the million-dollar bond scandal which rocked the Sunflower state not long ago. And every small town can see characters of its own village vividly depicted in this immensely real and interesting work. —T. J. H.

Mr. Crosby gets a big thrill from such consistent victories, even if they don't pay any prize money. A dozen of his mags are the only ones running at the Pomona track, where "Sing You Sinners" is being filmed.

Seven hundred extras are jammed into one section of the grandstand, and you'd be surprised how much difficulty Director Wesley Ruggles has in persuading a crowd of people watching a horse race to look like a crowd of people watching a horse race. Some are not excited enough, and others attract too much attention by waving their programs.

The handicap under which these people are working is that they must register excitement without making a sound, and appear to be cheering without uttering a syllable. Fred MacMurray and Crosby are holding a conversation down on the rail, and the background noises will be dubbed in later.

School

A schoolroom scene is being shot on a set for "Lord Jeff." The teacher ruses and says, "Gentlemen, class is dismissed," and Freddie Bartholomew leads a cheering group of boys from the room.

Out of the camera range, though, the cheers subside and the boys march right on into another classroom—a real one this time—to pursue their studies until the camera and lights are arranged for the next scene.

Gift

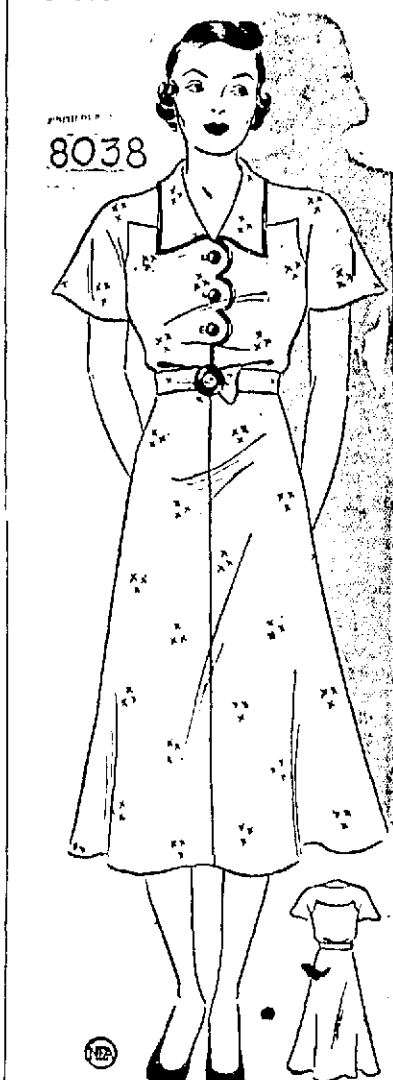

Leo Robin and Ralph Rainger, Paramount's prolific team of hit-tune writers, have been given a new and very expensive piano in appreciation of their success.

When the piano came, Rainger sat down reverently and for a couple of hours entertained himself and Robin by playing Chopin, Beethoven and other classics. Pretty soon they popped into the office of Fred Hollander, music director.

"Freddie," they said, "we gotta go to work. Can we borrow your old piano?"

At Walter Wanger's studio where they're filming "Algiers," conventional "typing" is being confusingly scrambled. Charles Boyer, usually an upstanding hero, is portraying Pepe Le Moko, a French cook. Sigrid Gurie, the Norwegian flower of Plathush, plays his native sweetheart, Austrian Redy Lamar, is a high-society Frenchy. Joseph Calleia, usually a ratty villain, now is a detective. Johnny Downs turns out to be a gangster in-

Today's Fashion Hint

Large Women Grow "Slim" Wearing This House Dress

By CAROL DAY
Here's a comfortable, trim-looking morning frock especially designed for women in the 36-to-42 size range. It has easy armholes and short, loose sleeves which give plenty of freedom while working round the house. The tailored collar and V-neckline are becoming to full faces. The skirt has straight, lengthening lines.

Pattern 8038 can be finished in a few hours, with the simple pattern and accompanying sew chart. It's typical of our good-looking dresses for large women. You'll find many more in our new pattern book.

For Pattern 8038, choose chambray, percale, seersucker or tub silk as material.

Pattern 8038 is designed for sizes 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, 48, 50 and 52. Size 38 requires 4 1/2 yards of 35-inch material. For contrasting collar, if desired, use 1/2 yard.

Selected Thoughts

The Eternal Struggle
The blundering ages roll along
Each one intent on righting wrong
And each one leaving in its flight
New wrongs for unborn men to right.

A Garden Thought
My garden has no creed at all
As far as I can tell.
All sorts of flowers from spring to fall
In peace together dwell.

Growth
Fatigue on the parent tree
Ripe the fruit must wait to be.
So by processes as slow
Men in mind and spirit grow.

The Oglesby P. T. A. held its final meeting of the school year at Oglesby school, with the new president, Mrs. H. O. Kyler presiding. Interesting reports from the P. T. A. Congress in Hot Springs were given by Mrs. Finley Ward, Mrs. Kyler and Mrs. George Northcott. The National President's report was read by Miss Pansy Wimberly.

One of the most attractive affairs of the spring was given on Tuesday afternoon when Miss Harriet Story entertained at a beautifully appointed tea announcing the engagement and approaching marriage of Miss Mary Guyola Basse, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Guy E. Basse to Hendrix Arthur Spraggins, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Spraggins, the wedding to take place on Thursday afternoon, June 2 at the First Methodist church. The guests were met at the door by Mrs. M. McLaughlin and were received by Mrs. Garrett Story, Miss Harriet Story, Miss Guyola Basse, Mrs. Guy E. Basse and Mrs. A. B. Spraggins. In the living room, Mrs. Fred R. Harrison presided over the clever puzzle scroll, which after each piece had been placed by the arriving guests, announced the interesting news. Others dispensing hospitality in the reception room were Mrs. J. O. Milam, Mrs. Dale Wilson, with Mrs. John Wellborn at the piano and Miss Mary Louise Keith giving a number of lovely vocal numbers throughout the tea hour. The bridal motif was most beautifully stressed in the decorations throughout the rooms, with bouquets and wall cases of snap dragon, sweet peas, gardenias and Queen Ann's lace placed at every point of vantage. The tea table was lace covered and centered with a bowl of sweet peas, snap dragon and baby breath. Four tall white candles burned in crystal flower bases holders, silver and crystal appointments completed the exquisite ensemble. The chosen flowers decorated the buffet and serving table. Mrs. W. A. Jackson has returned to her home in Benton after a Mother's Day visit with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. T. A. Middlebrooks.

The annual Mother's Day party of the First Baptist Sunday school was given on Tuesday evening at the Education building on South Main street, with the Althean, Glenners, Philatheans, Bereans and the Jennie Hagan classes as hosts. The guests were greeted by a receiving line formed from officers of the five classes and invited into the assembly room, which was beautifully decorated with a quantity of spring flowers arranged in tall vases and floor baskets with one end of the room arranged for the annual play written by Mrs. Hugh Smith. After a short social hour of conversation and greetings Mrs. Smith announced the 1938 Review would be presented, with Mrs. F. L. Padgett at the piano and Mrs. Smith reading the text, Father Time arrived on the scene with his mind fully made up to have a year of stirring activity, and called in the four seasons, Spring, Summer, Fall and Winter, who readily agreed to the plan of a parade of months, which were readily recognized by the stressing of some particular holiday pertaining to that month. Uncle Sam and Santa Claus seemed to be the favorites, June was easily recognized with the blushing bride and groom holding the center of the parade, the costumes were splendid and the line of thought expressed in the text was clever and so original, we bespeak for it, much popularity. Following the parade, Mrs. Smith was assisted by Mrs. Hugh Jones in the further features of the evening, including the introduction of "Mothers," the telling of clever sayings by children of the different mothers, followed by a delicious ice course with cake.

Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Smith and daughter, Betty have returned from a week-end visit with relatives in Gladewater, Texas.

The many friends of Dr. and Mrs. J. G. Martindale will be glad to know that the condition of Mrs. Martindale, who has been critically ill in a Memphis hospital for the past week, is reported as being slightly improved.

We have not words to express our sincere appreciation of the sympathy shown us by our friends and neighbors during the illness and passing of our dear daughter and sister, Mr. and Mrs. D. B. Russell, D. B. Russell Jr., Janey Sue Russell, James Fuller Russell.

Three in Race For

platform will be taken from the text of my first and only political advertisement, which will be published in the newspapers of the state as soon as I can scrape together the money personally to pay for it.

Referring to his defeat in the special election for United States senator last October, the chief executive said:

"After being chastised by the voters with a set of circumstances just fall, I didn't grin much, but I had to bear it. I found that I could bear it more easily by going ahead with the job of being governor to the best of my ability. That I have done.

"I was motivated by a sincere desire to be of further service to the state in a wider field. Arkansas needed a senator and I believed I was the man for the job. Few people, I am sure, questioned by earnest intentions or my qualification for the office. Apparently it was that they didn't like my method of approach, although—surely—I didn't invent it. I am not bitter about it, and my defeat last fall in the senatorial campaign cannot reasonably be considered to have any connection with the present gubernatorial campaign."

Governor Bailey continued: "This campaign will be conducted quite differently from others in which I have engaged. I will publish only one political advertisement. It will cost me as much as I can afford to spend personally. If others choose to write or speak in my behalf, I shall appreciate the spirit but I will not examine the substance nor be responsible for it.

"Although my health is restored, I do not intend to engage in a speaking campaign over the state. I shall appear publicly as often as is normally expected of a governor. If urged, I dare say I shall speak favorably of my administration. If I engaged in a speaking campaign, I could only discuss my record and the accomplishments of my administration. That I already have done. No one has successfully attacked the one or challenged the benefits of the other.

"I have been accused of making political mistakes. I plead guilty. They damaged me, however, not my people or my state. The only thing I could add to the discussion would be to present the accomplishments of the recent special session of the General Assembly. They are too well known and widely felt to require discussion. Besides, if I mentioned these things with some of the pardonable pride I feel in them, I would be accused by the opposition of trying to steal the glory and take the credit due the legislature. Opposition harpies always credit the legislature with programs that succeed, and condemn the governor for those that fail.

"So with your permission, I shall continue to work at my job, which—also with your permission—I hope to keep and deserve for two more years."

Three opponents of Governor Bailey have made formal announcements. They are: R. A. Cook of Little Rock, former Pulaski county judge who ran third in the 1936 gubernatorial primary; W. E. Phipps of Park Hill, Pulaski county, who recently was ousted as state education commissioner, and Dr. Walter Scott McNutt of Batesville, professor at Arkansas College.

THEATERS

At the Saenger Norman Taurag says that his engagement to direct David O. Selznick's technicolor production, "The Adventures of Tom Sawyer," due to open Thursday at the Saenger theater, realized one of his fondest ambitions—to bring to the screen a cast of children in color.

"Ever since I saw 'A Star Is Born,'" said the round jovial megaphonist, holder of an Academy award for his direction of "Skippy," "I have wanted to direct a cast of children in a picture suited to realizing the possibilities of the new developments in technicolor, which allow color to be kept in the proper place, a dramatic complement to story values without being obstructive.

"I believe that Mark Twain's story has a fantasy element that can be fully captured only with the use of color. The boy's world of Tom Sawyer, or any adolescent boy, has more than the delicate flavor of nostalgia which has endeared it to millions of adults. The growing boy lives in a world peopled with figures, and adventure, of his own imagination.

"In his own mind Tom Sawyer was never a bucolic schoolboy but a dashing Mississippi River pirate. Becky Thatcher was not the girl who sat across from him in school but a golden-haired princess needing the services of a stout-hearted knight.

"It takes color to capture the clear eyes of youth, the peachbloom quality of young complexion, to suggest the imaginative psychology surrounding childhood.

"To have photographed the flashing blue eyes of Tommy Kelly, the 12-year-old discovery from the Bronx who has the role of Tom Sawyer, in charcoal would have been a chromatic tragedy. Then there's Ann Gillis in the part of Becky Thatcher.

"Ann has brilliant red hair, tiger-green eyes, and red freckles. Think what technicolor does for a child of this coloring!

"In addition color permitted us to present one of the most gripping climaxes ever worked out in a color picture.

Shover Springs

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Collier and family of Oak Grove were dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Collier Sunday.

Sunday visitors from a distance in the Shover Springs community who remembered Mother's Day with her were: Mr. and Mrs. Jim Rogers of Helena, Ark., visited with her mother Mrs. John Laseter and Mr. Laseter. Mr. and Mrs. Joe Bailey Beckworth of Haynesville, La., visited with his mother, Mrs. J. B. Beckworth. Laveta England of Texarkana also spent the day with her mother, Mrs. V. M. England.

Mr. and Mrs. Bryan Ruggles and family motored to Washington Sunday and were guests of her father, Mr. Churchwell and Mrs. Churchwell.

Mrs. Henry Hillard of Hope and Mrs. Roy Cash of Little Rock were recent callers of Mrs. John Laseter.

George Crews and family were dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Grady Reese, Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Gray spent Sunday with her sister and family Mrs. Leslie Pirtle of Oak Grove.

Mr. Carroll from Oklahoma was this week-end guest of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Rollins.

Mr. and Mrs. O. J. Phillips and family motored to Delight recently and spent the day visiting relatives and old friends and neighbors. Mr. and Mrs. Ozie Reese and daughter May Ellen of Hope, called on Mr. and Mrs. Earle McWilliams Sunday.

Richard Aaron who has spent the past few months with his nephew E. Aaron, has gone to Houston, Texas to visit with other relatives for a while.

Hoyette Sullivan of Bright Star was a Sunday visitor of Mr. and Mrs. Sandefur Dudley.

Friends of Major McWilliams will be glad to know she is able to return to school after several weeks of illness.

Mrs. Hugh Laseter had the misfortune recently of something eating 20 broilers in one night. Only a few feathers and parts of the wings remained to tell the story.

There will be a community singing at Shover Springs next Sunday afternoon. Everybody come and bring your song books.

The
Man With the Hoe
Says—

Make a sowing of sweet corn every two weeks, so that you will have a constant supply at the height of its goodness.

Every garden should have an herb border. Plant sage for the beauty of its foliage as well as for its flavor. It is an excellent gray-leaved plant for the flower garden.

Celeriac makes fine flavoring for soups and stews.

Savoy cabbage is the finest you can grow in the home garden and it is seldom found on the market, because it does not keep well and should be used immediately after picking.

Broccoli, an Italian vegetable that is becoming popular in this country, is often planted to replace spinach. It resembles cauliflower somewhat, although not so large. The curds are green instead of white.

Modern stringless beans, half grown, served half an hour after picking, are among the most delicious and nourishing of foods. They are served as a special course by French cooks.

Italian marrow in the baby stage, about four inches long and an inch through, is a rare delicacy, seldom found in the markets because it does not keep. Boiled and served in butter sauce like asparagus, or sliced cold in salad, it is one of summer's supreme treats.

Almost as quick-growing as the early radishes is leptosyne Stillmani, a golden cosmos-like flower which will produce flowers from seed in five weeks. It is excellent for cutting.

Family Tries to Circle the Globe in a Tiny, 32-Foot Sailing Craft

By NEA Service

LOS ANGELES, Calif.—Around the world in a 32-foot sailboat—that's quite a trick if it can be done, and Bill Zaleski and his family are trying it.

Somewhere out in the Pacific William J. Zaleski, his bride of a few months, and the latter's grown son, Gene Carron, are footing along on a projected two-year round-the-world cruise which, if successful, will set a record.

Their boat, the Ad Astra, is six inches shorter than the sturdy little ship which Capt. Frank Robinson took around the world a few years ago, and two feet shorter than Capt. Harry Pigeon's famous globe-girdling craft.

Captain Zaleski is a seaman from way back, with more than 30 years experience. This leisurely world cruise in the Ad Astra is prompted by his desire to show his bride and young Carron the many colorful spots he visited during his career as a coast guardsmen, navy man and merchant mariner.

He holds an unlimited mate's license and only recently retired as second mate on the oil tanker Tejon.

Zaleski took his Norwegian pilot-type, gaff-rigged cutter out of Los Angeles harbor the other day and pointed her for the Hawaiian Islands. After cruising the South seas, he plans to touch at the Gilbert Islands, the Solomons, Australia, Sumatra, India, Arabia, and Egypt, cruise through the Suez Canal and the Mediterranean and up along the coast of Europe and then back across the Atlantic to the West Indies, Panama and the Galapagos Islands before returning to California.

The Ad Astra is equipped with an electric generating plant, carries short wave broadcasting and receiving sets, and has a 25-horsepower auxiliary motor. She carries 734 feet of sail.

The 32-foot cutter, Ad Astra, and the family which is sailing the boat around the world, are pictured above. Capt. Zaleski is shown at right. Center is his bride of a few months, and left, is her grown son, Gene Carron.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

Without Colman's—And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning

The liver should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas builds up your stomach. You get constipated. Your whole system is poisoned and you feel sour, sick and the world looks puny.

A mere bowel movement doesn't get at the cause. It takes the good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." Harmless, gentle, yet amazing in making bile flow freely. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name. 25c. Stubbornly refuse anything else.

With the County Agent

Clifford L. Smith

Dairy farming has proven very successful says Mr. O. F. Ruggles, of Shover Springs community, Hempstead county. Mr. Ruggles states that for a number of years cotton was the principal cash crop grown with a small amount of milk being sold as a supplementary cash income. In 1933, Mr. Ruggles began to realize that cotton was hardly paying the cost of production and too, his soils were becoming more depleted and eroded each year, from the practice of planting cotton to the same land for a number of years in succession. At this time he decided to increase his dairy herd and to start improving the pasture land. At the present time he has 40 acres of permanent pasture sowed to bermuda and seeded with lespedeza, bur clover and hop clover, and is milking 30 dairy cows. He states that the dairy type of farming is bringing larger cash returns in comparison with cotton and actually requires less drudgery work.

Oats are sown in the fall which act as a cover crop during the winter and are harvested the following summer for a grain crop for the dairy cattle; the oats being followed by cowpeas as a soil builder. Mr. Ruggles states that his soil is in a much better state of condition in that it produces higher yields, is more easily cultivated and has practically stopped eroding since he discontinued the practice of planting cotton to the same soil each year.

The SNAPSHOT GUILD

PROPER EXPOSURE

Brilliantly lighted beach subjects, with no harsh shadows, take less exposure. For this, 1/25 at f.16 (or the large lens opening on a box camera). If subject faces sun, or for a "long-shot" beach view, use f.22 or the small lens opening on a box camera).

MANY writers make a great deal to do about exposure, so that it seems complicated. As a matter of fact, for most ordinary subjects out of doors, it is simple.

Light in very early morning or late afternoon is quite weak, but from an hour or so after sunrise to about an hour before sunset, it is fairly constant in its intensity. During the middle daylight hours, camera loaded with chrome type or "pan" type film, set your lens and shutter as follows:

BRIGHT DAY
Average subject, 1/25 second and f.11 lens opening.
Open landscape, 1/25, f.16.
Water or beach scenes, 1/25, f.22.

LOUD BRIGHT DAY
Average subject, 1/25, f.8.
Open landscape, 1/25, f.11.
Water or beach scenes, 1/25, f.16.

DULL DAY
Average subject, 1/25, f.6.3.

Open landscape, 1/25, f.8.
Water or beach scenes, 1/25, f.8.

When you must use a high shutter speed, use a larger lens opening. Remember that 1/25 second at f.11 is the same as 1/50 at f.8, and about the same as 1/100 at f.6.3 and 1/200 at f.4.5.

Follow these exposures this spring and summer, and you won't go wrong. If you use a box camera, take snapshots on bright days only. On a dull day, place the box camera on a firm support and give a very short time exposure (one-half to one second, or about as fast as you can work the shutter when on "Time") using the small lens opening.

With any camera, when you are taking pictures shortly after sunrise or before sunset, you must use a larger lens opening, or a slower shutter speed. At such times, light tends to be yellow and the "pan" type film will be best as it is definitely faster in such light.

to insure profitable yields, states W. W. McClellan, Nashville, Ark., Route 1. Mr. McClellan has three and one-half acres of land on which he has sown a mixture of rye and vetch the past two years and followed by cotton. He harvested 1,403 pounds of lint cotton last year from his three and one-half acres. Up to the time he started this practice, he states that he made less than one-half bale per acre.

Mr. McClellan's farm is a sandy dirt land and the most of it is in very poor condition. In November, he sowed the entire 32 acres of cultivated land on his farm to a mixture of rye and vetch. "It really pays off," Mr. McClellan said. "And is the cheapest and best insurance to obtain profitable yields."

MAMA SAYS 2 OR 3 STICKS A DAY WILL RUN OUR ELECTROLUX!

Little 3¢ per day!

YOUR family needs the protection of Servel Electrolux, the Gas or Kerosene refrigerator. NOW. Taking chances with the foods you eat is dangerous business. 70 per cent of all sickness is caused by what you eat or drink. Food and milk spoil rapidly at kitchen temperatures. They must be kept cold! Servel Electrolux protects your family from sickness—by protecting your food from spoilage. Can you afford to take chances, when Servel Electrolux operates on as little as 2 or 3 cents a day? The price of a few sticks of gum!

This is because Servel Electrolux is a different kind of refrigerator—different from all others. Its freezing unit has no moving parts. It cannot wear. But moving parts do wear. Lose efficiency. Cost more and more to operate. Get noisy. Eventually wear out. Servel Electrolux has no moving parts. Just a tiny, silent gas flame takes the place of all that machinery. Gives you twice the ice the average family needs. Protection for meat, milk and left overs. Ice cream every day, if you like. And for 2 or 3 cents per day!

You don't "buy" a Servel Electrolux—it's an investment. A good investment, which not only pays back what you put in it, but pays a profit besides. It takes only a small part of that investment to put Servel Electrolux in your home. Why not NOW?

SAVINGS PAID FOR IT

"I have had my Servel Electrolux for over a year and a half. It is so economical to operate that I notice no difference in my gas bill."

—Mrs. C. C. Lamphere, 406 Maple Street, Camden, Ark.

"I am glad that I bought an Electrolux because the savings on left over foods which can be prepared into palatable dishes for later use and my quantity buying made possible by perfect refrigeration plus what I formerly paid for ice take care of payments on the refrigerator. I am sure that it does not cost me in excess of 50c per month to operate. We have kept vegetables in this Servel Electrolux as long as a week and find them to be as crisp and fresh as when placed there."

—T. C. Elliott, Eldorado, Arkansas.

"I have TWO Electrolux Refrigerators in apartments as well as TWO COOK STOVES AND HOT WATER HEATERS. The entire cost for the month of February was $1.02. I would be glad to recommend the Servel Electrolux to anyone." — Mrs. John O'Loughlin, Eldorado, Ark.
